LIFE IN
Polk County

Why didn't we do this sooner? That's the question Beverlee and I asked ourselves after settling into our new home in Polk County. We had visited and traveled through the county many times over the years, and the breathtaking, untouched natural beauty kept us coming back. One day, the thought of making Polk County our permanent home became a reality and we couldn't be happier! The slower-paced, family-oriented county is a great place for young and old alike and neighbors look out for each other in this tight-knit community.

So, if you've come to visit and enjoy the picturesque scenery, fish in one of our streams, raft the rapids on the Ocoee River, float the gentle Hiwassee River, or sit on an overlook on Chilhowee Mountain and watch the sunset; be very careful, as I suspect the desire to live here could become a reality.

State Representative Dan and Beverlee Howell

POLK COUNTY, TENNESSEE

Government & History

www.polkgovernment.com

Located in the southeast corner of Tennessee, Polk County was established in 1839 and named in honor of then-governor James K. Polk. The area had been inhabited by the Cherokee prior to settlement by the Europeans. In the Calhoun Treaty of 1819, the Cherokee ceded the land north of the Hiwassee River to the U.S. The remainder of the county was originally part of the Ocoee District, which was the last Cherokee territory to be turned over to the state in 1836. A special election in 1840 resulted in Benton being chosen as the county seat.

Copper was discovered in 1843, with mining operations underway by the 1850s leading to the southeastern portion of the county being known as the Copper Basin. Mining continued in the county until the last mine closed in 1987. In the early 1900s East Tennessee Power Company constructed two hydroelectric dams on the Ocoee River. Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) was founded in 1933 and purchased East Tennessee Power Company, known by that time as Tennessee Electric Power Company. In 1943, TVA constructed an additional dam, Ocoee Dam No. 3, on the Ocoee River, along with a powerhouse for the Apalachia Dam on the Hiwassee.

Polk County is home to an array of incredible outdoor resources, including Big Frog Mountain with an elevation of 4,224 feet. The next highest point westward would be the Black Hills of South Dakota or the Guadalupe Mountains of Texas! The Conasauga Snorkel Hole boasts 76 native fish species and is considered to contain one of the most diverse aquatic habitats in the nation. The Ocoee River was the site of the 1996 Olympic whitewater slalom events, still the only time those events have been held on a natural waterway. Today, the area around the Ocoee Whitewater Center is the hub for miles of historic hiking and biking trails, including a section of the original Old Copper Road, traversed by mule-drawn wagons hauling copper from the mines to nearby Cleveland until 1853 when the railroad made its way to Ducktown.

One of Polk County's most famous ancestors is buried on a hill overlooking the mighty Ocoee River – Nancy Ward. Born Nanye-hi in the late 1730s, she was the niece of Attakullakulla and cousin to war leader Dragging Canoe. As a teenager, Nanye-hi married Kingfisher and fought by his side at the battle of Taliwa until he was killed by the Creek Indians. She proceeded to take up his rifle and assume his place in battle, rallying the Cherokee to a victory. She was bestowed the title of Ghigau, 'Beloved Woman' and sat on the tribal council participating in negotiations at the first treaty between the US and the Cherokee. During the Revolutionary War, Nanye-hi, now married to Bryant Ward and known as Nancy Ward, she advocated peace with the white settlers, even warning a white settlement of an impending attack by her cousin, Dragging Canoe. Nancy was recognized as a Patriot for the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution for her actions. She settled along the Ocoee River around 1819 when the Hiwassee Purchase forced her to move south. Along the Ocoee River she operated an inn on Federal Road until her death in 1822. Her gravesite, along with her son Five Killer and her brother Long Fellow (The Raven), is now a part of the Hiwassee/Ocoee State Park and is open to the public.

We live in a high-tech, low-touch society; therefore, creating new relationships are very important. Our churches are biblically based and create an environment and opportunity that is conducive to building and creating new relationships, while at the same time hearing life-changing messages from our churches. We look forward to seeing you soon in a church of your choice.

The Little Flower that Could!

Ruth's Golden Aster is the little flower that embodies the spirit of Polk County! Our county was founded by strong people who managed to make a life out of these hardscrabble mountains just as this extremely rare, small, yellow-petaled, silvery-leaved perennial herb clings to the tiny soil deposits in the rock that anchors these flowers to the source of the limited nutrients that they need to survive. Similar to our river guides and recreational boaters, it turns out; these plants need the repetitive flooding of the rivers to keep them alive! It appears this constant scouring of the rock prevents the growth of competing plants like poison ivy, Virginia creeper, and Japanese honeysuckle, from overtaking our little flower and wiping it out! The locations where Ruth's Golden Aster thrives are areas where the river is wide, and the plants can receive 50% of direct sunlight. Only Polk County's Hiwassee and Ocoee River locations have the precise confluence of hydrology, location, and geology necessary to provide the perfectly vulnerable habitat that allows this proud little flower to continue to fight for its survival!

While the Hiwassee River contains 90% of Ruth's known population, less frequent flow has allowed more soil deposits resulting in other more aggressive plants to take over its limited habitat. Interestingly, the Ocoee population has slowly but steadily increased, most likely due to the more frequent water releases. The Hiwassee also lacks the degree of protection by our local State Park rangers, education by the rafting industry, as well as TVA and the USFS's concerted effort to mark areas as no tread zones on the river.

*W*hitewater rafting on the Ocoee River, as we know it today, came about due to a rock slide in 1976 that damaged the flume line. In September 1976 water was allowed to flow freely down the riverbed for the first time since the early 1900s. Folks showed up with army surplus rafts to run the 5 miles of whitewater rapids resulting from the flume damage. Rafting companies began to spring up while TVA worked to repair the flume in order to again divert water from the river to the hydroelectric plant to turn the turbines. TVA, the outfitters, and Congress were able to develop an agreement to provide 116 days of recreational water release per year and Polk County's whitewater rafting industry was born!

HIWASSEE RIVER SCENIC RAILROAD

Trains run from Delano, TN, through the scenic Hiwassee River Gorge on select dates, spring - fall. Two ride options: The Hiwassee Loop for a half day or The Copperhill Special for a full day.

The train winds its way through the trees, providing a beautiful view of the lower Hiwassee River Gorge. This trip takes you to the top of the famous Hiwassee Loop, where the tracks cross over themselves as they corkscrew up the mountain near Farner, Tennessee. There are only 6 of these loops in North America.

The railroad over which Tennessee Valley Railroad Museum trains travel on its Hiwassee River Scenic Railroad was formerly part of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad's Atlanta Division stretching between Etowah, Tennessee, and Marietta, Georgia.
